

MANAGER – NEW DEPARTMENT

MAJOR WARRANTY PROJECTS IN GLOBAL LEADING EDGE TECHNOLOGY COMPANY

Our client is part of an international group that is leading in technology in various fields.

In Denmark, the company employs about 4.000 employees and their headquarters are located in the middle part of Jutland.

The company has achieved its strong market position through innovation, know-how, and quality. The main activities are development, sales, and production.

The corporate culture is characterized by environmental consciousness, a close eye on quality, reliability, innovation, and open-mindedness.

There is a constantly ongoing effort to develop the competencies of the employees, among other things through project work, supplementary training, and stationing.

Our customer wishes to strengthen management and execution of major warranty projects. This area is considered of strategic importance and is fully supported by top management. You will establish a team of project managers and experts. Together you will develop and implement standards and methods for efficient management of warranties and project implementation.

Your new department must be a competent link between markets and product owners in R&D and Supply Chain. One of your major challenges will be to ensure resources for the warranty projects in a busy matrix organisation.

Key success factors for the department will include qualitative analysis and problem identification as well as a smooth, well-structured implementation of major warranty projects. Project teams for each project will include members from different disciplines and cultures.

You are comfortable managing and operating in complex matrix organisations, and you have considerable experience managing projects in a multi-cultural knowledge-based technological environment. You are not necessarily an expert within this field, but you have a proven record and experience from similar management positions. Experience from a major R&D unit or warranty department will be relevant.

You operate comfortably at all levels and demonstrate excellent communication skills – you are a natural networker. You have exceptional analytical skills. As a manager you are confident - plans and deadlines are reached on account of your coaching and motivating leadership. You must be able to handle highly complex projects and situations, and you are proficient in English – written and oral.

Attractive compensation and conditions negotiated individually.
